Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, Early Intervention Strategy: A Case Study in Evidence-Based Diversionary Practices

Introduction: The Justice Reinvestment Initiative (JRI)

Over the past five years (2011–2016), the Center for Effective Public Policy (the Center) and its partner Applied Research Services (ARS) provided technical assistance to nine local jurisdictions that applied for and were selected by the U.S. Department of Justice, Office of Justice Programs, Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) to participate in their Justice Reinvestment at the Local Level (JRLL) initiative. During this period, the participating jurisdictions progressed through a two-phased process (“Phase I” and “Phase II”) to examine the drivers of justice system costs and populations, develop and implement strategies to address those drivers, and realize cost savings and reinvestment goals.

Central to the JRI approach at the local level is the use of data and information to:

1. understand the current operations of the justice system, including the drivers of cost and population;
2. analyze various policy change options and their potential impact on cost, population, and community safety;
3. strengthen implementation efforts designed to improve the justice system and its outcomes; and
4. measure the performance of implementation strategy efforts, enabling readjustment and improvement over time.

Despite the similarities in the JRI process, the local sites involved in the work each designed strategies to address local goals and needs. This case study documents the work of one of the local JRI sites: Milwaukee County, Wisconsin.

Milwaukee County Criminal Justice System Vision Statement

By applying what the evidence tells us about what actually works in protecting the community and holding offenders accountable, Milwaukee County’s criminal justice system will make the smartest possible use of its limited resources, continuously improving its performance against quantifiable goals and reinvesting the savings in programs that reduce crime in the first place.¹

Background: Milwaukee County

Milwaukee County, Wisconsin, is the largest of Wisconsin’s counties. Its county seat is the city of Milwaukee. The county has a population of 957,735; 75.6% are age 18 years and over. The median household income is $43,385, and 22.0% of the population lives at or below the poverty line.\(^2\) In calendar year 2015, 5,630 felony and 4,485 misdemeanor complaints were filed, in addition to 2,566 criminal traffic cases.\(^3\) The county criminal court is composed of 47 nonpartisan circuit court judges elected by voters, 14 of whom handle felony cases and 7 of whom handle misdemeanors. The elected district attorney has approximately 125 assistants, while approximately 60 public defense attorneys handle adult criminal matters and 25 public defense attorneys handle juvenile, Children in Need of Protection or Services (CHIPS), Termination of Parental Rights (TPR), and related cases under the auspices of the Wisconsin State Public Defender’s Office. The racial makeup of the county is 53% White, 27% Black or African American, 14% Hispanic or Latino of any race, and 6% Other races.\(^4\) Jail bookings in calendar years 2008, 2011, and 2014, were 42,179, 40,043, and 33,515, respectively.\(^5\)

Milwaukee’s JRI Activities

Milwaukee County was selected to participate in JRI in May 2011. The county had been participating in the National Institute of Corrections-sponsored Evidence-Based Decision Making (EBDM) in Local Criminal Justice Systems Initiative since August 2010 and, as such, was well-positioned to fully engage in JRI activities.\(^6\)

Before and during Phase I of JRI, the county actively participated in a comprehensive process to understand their cost drivers, including:

- identifying and bringing together key stakeholders and, collaboratively, developing a joint vision and mission statement;
- developing a system map and conducting a policy and practice analysis;
- convening a series of evidence-based practice seminars for policymakers and staff;
- providing access to local data and examining raw data and simulation modeling results;
- analyzing local costs, particularly those associated with the operation of local correctional facilities; and
- convening leadership meetings to consider the feasibility of strategies and reach consensus on proposed change targets.

\(^6\) For more information about the EBDM in Local Criminal Justice Systems Initiative, see ebdmoneless.org.
These activities led county leaders to develop the “Milwaukee County Early Intervention (EI) Strategy,” a set of diversionary options designed to follow key research principles—primarily the risk and need principles—and reduce the time, cost, and collateral consequences associated with traditional case processing in appropriate cases.

Milwaukee County Early Intervention Strategy

Milwaukee County offers the opportunity for some defendants, under appropriate circumstances, to participate in one of several early intervention programs. The purpose of these programs is to maximize the opportunity to support and encourage prosocial attitudes and behaviors among those who become involved in the justice system, while minimizing the potential negative consequences that may accrue to an individual involved in the system, such as social stigma, exposure to higher risk offenders, and loss of prosocial supports (family, employment, educational activities, etc.).

Development of a New Approach to Diversion and Deferred Prosecution

Dating back to March 2007, the District Attorney’s Office had worked in collaboration with the Public Defender’s Office to identify suitable defendants for diversion and deferred prosecution; approximately 117 defendants per year were provided the opportunity to avoid traditional case processing, criminal charges, and prosecution (J. Chisholm, letter of application from Milwaukee County Community Justice Council [CJC] to BJA for participation in JRI, October 11, 2012). However, as stated in the words of one Milwaukee official, “It was a very non-uniform process...A lot of these decisions were just gut-based.” Identification of diversion and deferred prosecution agreement (DPA) cases was dependent upon the assigned assistant district attorney and/or defense attorney, and formal eligibility criteria and conditions associated with participation in each option had not been formulated. The system was not informed by risk in terms of selection criteria or by social science research in terms of program expectations. As a result, “there was a collective decision to create a ‘central clearinghouse’ to [divert] as many clients as possible...We needed a central place for referrals—to make sure we applied eligibility criteria objectively and across the board.”

Definitions

Diversion: The district attorney withholds filing charges and the individual agrees to complete certain terms of a diversion agreement. If the individual satisfactorily completes the terms of the agreement, the district attorney does not file charges. If the individual does not satisfactorily complete the terms of the agreement, the district attorney issues the criminal charges and proceeds with formal prosecution.

Deferred Prosecution: The district attorney files charges and then reaches an agreement with an individual to complete a deferred prosecution program. If the individual satisfactorily completes the program, the formal charges are either dismissed or reduced. If the individual does not satisfactorily complete the deferred prosecution program, the Judgment of Commitment is entered and the individual is sentenced.
Milwaukee officials developed the conceptual framework for their new approach to diversion and deferred prosecution as part of their Phase II JRI grant application, and secured agreement from the county to support the Early Intervention Strategy if their application proved successful. Between May 2011 and March 2014, after the award of BJA grant funding, the Early Intervention (EI) Committee,\(^7\) with the assistance of their JRI technical assistance provider, developed the policies, procedures, and protocols to ensure an evidence-based approach to the Early Intervention Strategy. They:

- integrated a risk/needs assessment process for early intervention options into a pre-existing “universal screening” approach applied to pretrial defendants;
- redefined the eligibility requirements for both the diversion and deferred prosecution tracks;
- tailored the programmatic requirements of each track to the risk level of the target population, with a “minimum intervention” approach for the low-risk diversion participants and a risk reduction approach for the moderate-risk deferred prosecution participants; and
- created a “Central Liaison Unit (CLU)” to provide case management and, for the moderate-risk population, risk reduction interventions.\(^8\)

A request for proposal for services was developed and a contractor selected to operate the CLU. Once selected, the county used JRI technical assistance to provide intensive training and coaching to staff attorneys in both the District Attorney’s Office and Public Defender’s Office who were assigned to the EI program, as well as to CLU case managers—all of whom would make up the case management team. Stakeholders participated in the training as well. In addition, a collaborative work model was developed that allowed the attorneys to honor their professional obligations while being invested in the overall success of the EI program. This shift in working culture and new model for attorneys’ roles was critical to achieving improved system outcomes.

To further support the evidence-based approach of the EI strategy, a stakeholder group developed responses to prosocial and noncompliance behaviors (see Appendix 1). In addition, case management staff were provided with risk reduction tools (Carey Guides and Brief Intervention ToolS, or BITS),\(^9\) and in-house Thinking for a Change (T4C) classes were established.\(^10\) Finally, the capacity to collect data (e.g., number of participants, percent of participants by risk level, average length of program participation, total jail/prison days saved) was developed.

\(^7\) The Early Intervention (EI) Committee is a subcommittee of the CJC Programs Services Committee. It is comprised of pretrial staff, private providers, courts, district attorneys, public defenders, Department of Corrections staff, and private attorneys.

\(^8\) BJA funding supported start-up costs for the Central Liaison Unit. From the outset, funding from other sources supported other aspects of the strategy, including risk screenings and assessments.

\(^9\) The Carey Guides and BITS are published by Carey Group Publishing. For more information, see www.careygrouppublishing.com.

\(^10\) Thinking for a Change (T4C) was developed by the National Institute of Corrections. For more information, see www.nicic.gov/t4c.
Eligibility Requirements

Under the Early Intervention Strategy, defendants who score low on the LSI-R:SV (or LSI-R), 12 who have pending charges for non-exclusionary crimes, are eligible for pretrial diversion. Defendants who score low/moderate, 13 who are charged with non-exclusionary crimes, are eligible for deferred prosecution. 14 Defendants who are on Department of Corrections supervision who would otherwise meet the DPA eligibility criteria shall be considered, on a case-by-case basis, for a DPA in conjunction with a formal Alternative to Revocation. (See Appendix 2 for policies and procedures regarding early intervention eligibility that were prepared for attorneys.)

Diversion Program Process

If a defendant meets the eligibility criteria for pretrial diversion, pretrial diversion is considered at the charging conference. A set of reasonable requirements are developed—with victim consultation in cases involving victims—and presented to the defendant. (See Appendix 3 for the Milwaukee County District Attorney’s Office diversion program agreement.) A standard program expectation is that defendants remain crime-free during the diversion process, and defendants are encouraged to continue/pursue prosocial activities. In addition, the diversion program offers two tracks: restorative justice (e.g., victim–offender mediation, letters of apology) and accountability (e.g., paying restitution, community service, short-term targeted educational programs or classes such as “shoplifters’ groups,” referrals for school/job training). Conditions do not focus on problem solving or risk reduction, given that the diversionary population is assessed as low risk. 15 If problem solving issues are discovered, they are addressed through recommendation and referrals; they do not result in mandated services. Overprogramming is avoided. 16 If an offer is accepted by a defendant, no criminal complaint is filed.

Diversion agreements are generally six months in length. During this time, there is minimal contact with the individual. Diversion participants are considered to have successfully completed their diversion if program requirements are met, they have remained crime-free during the diversionary period, and they have paid all restitution. If an individual has remained crime-free but has not completed the terms of the pretrial diversion by the end of the agreement in spite of their best efforts, the diversion may be extended. If a diversion participant is arrested while on a pretrial diversion agreement, the District Attorney’s Office will consider the nature of the new charge and may offer a new agreement that combines the original diversion agreement with a new deferred prosecution agreement offer. If an individual has completed a diversion agreement successfully in the past and is arrested again, the case will be reviewed by the District Attorney’s Office to determine appropriateness for pretrial diversion (assuming the individual meets the eligibility criteria). An offer of DPA may also be considered. Factors

12 Low scores on the LSI-R:SV range from 0 to 2; low scores on the LSI-R range from 1 to 13.
13 Low/moderate scores on the LSI-R range from 14 to 33.

16 Ibid.
that are considered include the current LSI-R score or the results of another long-term recidivism risk/needs assessment, length of time from the completion of the previous diversion, and particular type of new charge.

Deferred Prosecution Agreement Process

Defendants appropriate for a deferred prosecution agreement are those assessed as moderate risk to reoffend on the basis of a long-term risk/needs assessment (i.e., the LSI-R) who are not charged with an exclusionary crime. The conditions of a DPA must address risk reduction, although they can also include accountability strategies. The following are some examples of conditions:

- Risk Reduction Strategies
  - cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT)
  - substance abuse/mental health treatment
  - anger management with CBT component
  - parenting with CBT component

- Accountability Requirements
  - remain crime-free for the duration of the DPA
  - participate in drug testing, if indicated and performed by the substance abuse provider
  - pay restitution, as applicable
  - perform community service hours, if appropriate
  - meet restorative justice requirements, if appropriate
  - agree to electronic monitoring/GPS, as needed
  - complete short-term targeted educational programs (e.g., “shoplifters’ groups”) as appropriate

The requirements must be tailored to the individual based on a thorough and individualized risk/needs assessment and crafted in such a way that the individual is able to reasonably meet expectations. The emphasis is on addressing the most significant criminogenic needs rather than on addressing every need; over-conditioning is avoided.\(^{17}\) (See Appendix 4 for the deferred prosecution agreement.)

Because of their greater risks and needs, DPA participants are assessed and routinely monitored by professional case managers. Progress/compliance reports are required at three- and six-month intervals. Prosocial behaviors are intentionally encouraged and recognized. If there is noncompliance with program conditions, a written plan is put in place to address the noncompliance. (See Appendix 1 for policies and procedures regarding reporting and responding to noncompliant and prosocial behavior.)

DPA duration is based on risk and need, but is generally between 6 and 18 months. DPA participants are considered successful if they complete the requirements as agreed and remain crime-free during the period of monitoring under the DPA. If a defendant has not completed all the requirements of the agreement at the end of its term but a good faith effort has been made, an extension may be granted by stipulation of all the parties. If the DPA participant fails to complete the requirements of the agreement, he or she will be sentenced on the charge(s) as pled. If a participant is arrested while on a DPA, the District Attorney’s Office will consider the nature of the new charge and may consider referring the individual to drug court or the day reporting center for further intervention. The case under which the individual was offered a DPA may be bundled with the new charge. In rare situations, a new DPA with more intensive conditions could be offered with an extension of the original DPA. If an individual has completed a DPA successfully in the past and is arrested again, the case is reviewed by the District Attorney’s Office to determine if the individual is eligible for another deferred prosecution agreement. Factors that are considered include the LSI-R (or another long-term recidivism risk/needs assessment) score, length of time from the completion of the deferred prosecution agreement, and particular type of new charge.

Administration of Programs and Services

The aforementioned programs and services are administered by the Office of the Chief Judge of Milwaukee County with the assistance of the Milwaukee Community Justice Council Programs & Interventions Committee, whose responsibilities include oversight of risk/needs assessments and other eligibility screening for diversion/deferred prosecution cases, system coordination, liaison with community work service and treatment service providers, and performance measurement and outcome reporting.

Staffing and Management Structure

The CLU was initially staffed through a one-time BJA award of $300,000. These funds supported hiring a CLU program coordinator, two case managers, and one combination case manager/Thinking for a Change facilitator, for a total of four full-time employees (FTEs); the funding also supported operational costs for the CLU start-up period.\(^\text{18}\)

The EI Committee serves as the collaborative policy team that provides guidance to the CLU. As such, they meet on a routine basis to discuss operational issues and address problems as needed. The CLU case management process also follows a collaborative model. The case management team meets on a weekly basis to conduct case conferences with clients who are struggling and to affirm and reward those who are excelling.

A unique aspect of Milwaukee County’s Early Intervention Strategy is the inclusion of a Milwaukee Police Department (MPD) uniformed officer on the case management team. The MPD court liaison:

- assists in gathering information concerning defendants’ criminal history, local contacts, and gang and/or gun involvement to determine appropriateness for early intervention through communication with district officers and law enforcement intelligence databases;
- coordinates MPD efforts to monitor Early Intervention participants (including home visits and other conditions of release pursuant to individual agreements) as well as to locate absconders;
- participates in Early Intervention staffings; and
- coordinates any MPD officers who have previous military service who agree to volunteer as mentors as part of the Veteran’s Treatment Initiative.

Program Size and Capacity

Based upon ARS simulation modeling, the projected numbers for early intervention were 600 diversions annually and 67 deferred prosecution participants at any given time; however, determining these estimates involved some degree of speculation. Ultimately, it was determined that the diversion numbers were overestimated, while the DPA numbers were significantly underestimated.

\(^{18}\) Subsequently, county funds have supported the continuation of the CLU.
Benefits and Outcomes

Milwaukee re-engineered its approach to diversion and deferred prosecution in an effort to more closely align its services with evidence-based practices—decreasing the level of intervention with the low-risk population while delivering, as early as possible, risk reduction services to the moderate risk. In addition, their efforts were designed to increase the number of defendants who could be served through these programs and decrease strain on expensive jail and prison resources. Further, policymakers placed a high value on ensuring equal access to these programs by all defendants.

As evidenced by the data in the chart below, these goals have been realized. Over a 26-month period, more than 1,100 individuals have been served through these early intervention programs—with the vast majority completing their agreements successfully—all while services have been delivered following the risk and need principles and while reliance on jail and prison beds for this population has been significantly reduced.

Reporting

Client office contacts must be determined by their LSI-R score.

- Standard: Once monthly face-to-face contact required for DPA. (Only used as reward)
  - Face-to-face at 3-month period and subsequent monthly face-to-face for diversion clients who have not completed conditions of diversion agreement.
- Enhanced: Twice monthly face-to-face contact required.
  - LSI-R 14-23 (Initial)
- Intensive: Weekly face-to-face contact required.
  - LSI-R 24-33 (Initial)

A reduction or increase in reporting schedule is determined by the Early Intervention Behavior Matrices (see below) in correlation with program milestones and achievement, or lack thereof.

Responding to Violations or Compliance with Conditions

If a defendant who has been ordered to cooperate with one of the Milwaukee County Early Intervention programs is in violation or compliance with his/her DPA conditions or conditions set forth by the monitoring agency, those behaviors will be applied to the behavior matrices below.

- Two matrices have been developed for the Central Liaison Unit: one to address both positive and negative behavior for DPA clients and one to address both positive and negative behavior for diversion clients.
- The matrices provide both accountability responses and behavior-changing responses.
- The matrices will determine what type of reporting process will be followed.
- For responses to negative behavior that do not require a formal report, a notation will be required in the database with a scheduled “Response to Violation” case note.
- For responses to behavior that do require a formal report, the current violation report in the database will be used along with a notation in the database with a scheduled “Response to Violation” case note and any action taken prior to and after staffing (if applicable).
- Positive behaviors addressed will be noted using the “General Note” case note.

I, _____, agree to take part in the Milwaukee County Diversion Program. I understand that if I fulfill this Agreement, the District Attorney will not file a charge(s) against me. I understand that if I do not fulfill this Agreement, I will be terminated from this program, my case will be sent to the District Attorney, and my case will be reviewed for criminal charge(s). The initial charge(s) that the District Attorney may file against me if I am terminated from this program is ____. The initial disposition that the District Attorney may recommend for this charge is ____.

An absolute requirement for this Agreement is that I must avoid committing a crime during the term of this Agreement. I understand if at any time during the diversion agreement there is probable cause to believe that I have committed any criminal offense which is not the subject of this diversion agreement, whether that criminal offense occurs before or after the date of this agreement, the District Attorney’s Office may at its discretion revoke this agreement and issue criminal charges.

I understand and agree that my case will be held open until (date and time) ____. I must appear at Room 110 Milwaukee County Criminal Justice Facility, 949 N 9th St. on that date and time unless otherwise notified by one of the parties to this agreement.

I understand that my case will be reviewed to determine if I am doing the things listed below satisfactorily. Monthly reports will be sent to the Assistant District Attorney and my attorney certifying compliance with the terms of this agreement.

I understand that this diversion agreement may be extended by stipulation of all the parties.

I understand that I can quit this program at any time, but if I do, my case will be charged as it would have had I not entered this program. I understand that all information about my cooperation with this program will be shared with the District Attorneys and their staff, the caseworker, and my defense attorney.
I understand if at any time during the diversion agreement it is discovered that I have a criminal record anywhere beyond that included in the discovery materials or previously disclosed by me to the State, or that I have other pending matters that I knew or should have known about that ultimately result in criminal charges, the State reserves the right to revoke this agreement.

Further, if at any time during the pendency of the case a bench warrant is issued for the defendant’s arrest, the defendant agrees that the agreement shall be automatically extended up until at least the date of the Defendant’s next appearance in court on this case.

11. Non-Compliance - If, at any time during the deferral period, the defendant has not complied with the conditions of this agreement, the State may at its discretion revoke this agreement, and, upon notice to the defendant, move the court to enter the judgment of conviction and the parties shall proceed to sentencing.
